Energy efficient renovations of public buildings are being discussed

Hungarian municipalities have large real estate assets and operate a number of institutions, so it is important to strive for energy efficiency in the framework of renovation. An EU-sponsored REBUS project is held with the participation of experts from six countries in our county.

The project organized a conference on Wednesday in the County Chamber. The guests were welcomed by the Hungarian partner Bora '94 Nonprofit Ltd., András Lenártek.

Dezső Török, president of the county assembly, said in a greeting to Seneca, the ancient wise man, "Lack of energy when it is a fortune," which is not only for money but also for energy. In addition, less energy also means lower environmental load. Concerning the event, he emphasized the importance of presenting good examples and sharing experiences.
