Differences were brought out between city districts, age groups and nationalities.

Debate, questions & answers

There was a very long debate after introduction of Intherwaste project partners good practices on waste deposit in heritage areas. As the Tallinn Old Town residents are very environmentally friendly and they want to sort household waste properly then these kind of stakeholders meetings are perfect events, where to discuss waste management problems in heritage area. The members of Tallinn Old Town Society made propositions that there should be mix of different waste collection systems in Tallinn Old Town area.

The short report summary of residents satisfaction with public services in Tallinn gave a good objective overview of citizens main concerns and difficulties of sorting household waste. These kind of reports give the city authorities opportunity to solve emerged problems taking into account residents opinions.

There is forming one stable group of stakeholders (approximately 14 participants), who are attending meetings held during INTHERWASTE project.
